PICTURES ARE THE BEST IN OREGON

How we may Aid the Government in putting down Rebellion more effectually than by risking our Lives on the Battle Field

It is an old axiom that money is the sinews of war, and it is also well understood that [illegible] the perpetuity [illegible] its [illegible] Hence the great solicitude now manifested by the Government to inspire the people with confidence [illegible] as the only means of keeping [illegible] the only means of prosecuting the war to a successful termination [illegible] in every part of the country.

There is but one way to do this, and this way only needs to be suggested [illegible] and that is to receive these notes in all [illegible] business transactions the same as gold and silver coin, the value of which has been fixed under the Constitution by Congress, the same power which has declared by law that certain drafts drawn by the proper officer of the Government upon the Treasury of the United States shall be received by all the people in value to the coinage of the United States, and that it shall be received in payment of all dues, the same as gold and silver.

The question very naturally suggests itself to every inquiring mind why this is [illegible] being done in this and every other portion of the United States where the people profess to acknowledge the obligation resting with them to obey implicitly every law enacted by the Constitutional authorities of their Government. And why is it that we find men who exert a wide spread influence in their [illegible] communities daily violating this most important law by refusing to receive these bonds, and why is it that our marshal and other officers of the Government who are sworn to see that the laws are obeyed, fail to punish those who endeavor to depreciate the value of these bonds? Is it right that one class of laws shall be enforced while another is violated with impunity? Will our Government imprison those "giving aid and comfort to the enemy," by merely advising their neighbors not to shoulder the rifle and aid in suppressing the rebellion, while it permits bankers and merchants to violate the law which requires them to regard the bonds of the Government as equal to her coin, and thus compel the Government by the deprivation of her credit, to acknowledge the independence of Rebeldom and thus bring about the very thing for which the more honest sympathizer had been taken to prison. Will honest loyal men, who regard their Government as of more value than that which perishes with the using, and who, like [illegible] lamented Stevens, are willing to yield their lives in its defence, be so glaringly inconsistent as to denounce the [illegible] with the rebellion, and to defend the other who strikes the more stealthily and effectually at the very life of the Government? We think not.

We hold that a man's patriotism should be estimated by the extent of sacrifice he is willing to make for the support of the Government. Men who sacrifice their lives in their country's defence, are entitled to more credit than those who contribute money for that purpose, and who make pecuniary sacrifices for maintaining its credit, [illegible] will contend that those who refuse to do either and refuse to receive treasury notes [illegible] in order to put into their pockets ten or fifteen per cent additional profit on their merchandise, are entitled to credit for either patriotism or loyalty. There are men to be found everywhere who make merchandise of their country, and who like vultures prey upon her misfortunes and reverses in order that they may add to their ill-gotten treasure a few dollars.

We are not aware that we have any of this class of men in our midst. On the contrary, we feel justified in saying that Messrs. [illegible] & Son, H. A. Hodson, [illegible] and L. Bettman, the four largest business houses in the place, will obey the law, and receive legal tender notes in payment for goods, at par, and we doubt not that all loyal men in our community will do the same.— Popular sentiment will ere long compel those mercenary business men who are now giving aid and comfort to the enemy by depreciating Government bonds in violation of law, to desist from their treasonable work. If they are permitted to go on unmolested they will soon undermine the national credit that we will [illegible] to acknowledge the independence of the Southern Confederacy for the want of means to prosecute the war.

The Government is now confiscating the property of those who aid the enemy or express sympathy with the rebellion. Why then should the property of those who are warring upon the credit of the Government, and thus giving more substantial aid to the rebels than they are capable of giving in any other way, be exempt from the penalty inflicted upon less guilty offenders? The war is now assuming a stern reality, and all classes of men should be made to feel that there is no longer any neutral ground for them to occupy; that the Government has a right to claim from them personal and pecuniary sacrifices. Those who [illegible] and treated accordingly, [illegible] Loyal men say that the punishment [illegible] merited.—Washington Statesman.

Elijah M. Carey has received the Union nomination in the Seventh District.

Governor Gamble of Missouri on the 21 of Sept. made a requisition upon the bank and savings institutions for the sum of [illegible] hundred and fifty thousand dollars to purchase arms for the Government. This requisition is made in anticipation of the money to be collected under the recent assessment order. The banks and savings institutions, we understand, have all responded favorably, and placed the amount required at the disposition of the Governor. The hope entertained by some of the Secessionists that this order would not be enforced to the full amount is thus dissipated. The full amount will be assessed and collected.

Editorial Correspondence

Oregon State Fair—Third Day

The day opened with heavy showers of rain which continued at short intervals to pour down in torrents until late in the afternoon. At the hour of nine A. M. the entries ... were given over into the hands of the several inspecting committees, who proceeded to examine and decide the awards of premiums. We were favored with an opportunity of inspecting the various articles on exhibition in the main pavilion, and must say that we saw many productions of the natural and artificial truly wonderful and pleasing. Among the natural or vegetable productions we noticed several samples of wheat (fall, winter and spring) oats, rye, barley, beans, corn, broom corn, potatoes, tomatoes, cabbages, onions, carrots, timothy seed, buckwheat, gourds, beets, parsnips, and a mammoth squash from Walla Walla valley, weighing one hundred and sixty eight pounds; also several specimens of butter, the finest appearing of which was made by Mrs John Laughlin. Extra fine salt, from Portland Salt Works, by Capt Dodge; superfine quality of corn starch, superior to any thing of the kind ever seen in the country. We are sorry we could not learn the name of the manufacturer. Extra quality of soap, by W B Meal & Co, Portland; several fine samples of bread; extra bacon, ham and side; assortment of saddlery and harness, by J B Emery, of Salem; small exhibition of fruits, not very attractive either in size or quality. We are inclined to the opinion that the fruit interest is dying out, somewhat, in many parts of Oregon. We hope that such may not be the case throughout the State. Fine and very excellent samples of wines, jellies, cakes, dried fruits, preserves, pastries of all kinds, cider, vinegar and pickles.

Considerable dissatisfaction, we are sorry to say, was manifested by parties interested in the award of premiums in this department, several alleging that injustice was done or partiality shown to certain competitors of whom there was quite a number. The names of the ladies inscribed upon the various cards attached to these articles were Mrs P Stanton, Mrs W K Leveridge, Mrs L Williams, Mrs. J H Moores, Mrs J N Gilbert, Mrs Phillip Ritz, Mrs W T Newby, and Mrs Simeon Francis, the latter of whom drew the greatest number of prizes. Among the specimens of needle work done by hand, we noticed first, a splendid and costly white counterpane, worked by Mrs J E Lemon. A card attached to this counterpane states that Mrs L planted the seed, cultivated, gathered, spun and wove the cotton, and worked the counterpane, cap and collar attached; we are informed, however, that from some inexplicable cause the examining committee failed to notice this extraordinary piece of work, which we regard as superior in skill and tasteful design to anything of the kind on exhibition.

Several beautiful and elegant patchwork quilts were also on exhibition, made by the following ladies: Mrs Hannah Holderness, Mrs Elizabeth Smith, Mrs Wesley Shannon, Mrs Louisa Keller, Mrs J Byrne and Mrs W T Newby. Also three ladies bonnets and three Misses hats, by Mrs Levy. Woolen rug and superior shell work, floral design, by Miss Sawyer. Ornamental work box by Miss Laura Bell, also same by Miss Trimbell. Floral designs and lamp mats (cruel) by Mrs W K Leveridge, also the same by Miss L Breyman. Chair seats, papier mache and child's cloak, by Mrs Governor Gibbs. Crochet collar, by male insane patient in the State Asylum. Card writing by Morris Aron. Oil painting by Mr Tappan, of Portland—well executed and attracted much attention. Photographs, ambrotypes, specimens of fossil remains, geology, mineralogy and natural history by Messrs Buchtel & Cardwell, of Portland. Live rabbits and stuffed animal skins belonging to Mr B Rupp. Recent inventions in mechanic's tools and handy contrivances, nose catchers &c, by Mr E N ...thrup, of Portland, and last but the greatest invention of the age, the renowned Wheeler & Wilson sewing machine, by Mr F C Pomeroy, of Portland, who has a whole corner to himself, and presents the most attractive display of all others present. To be continued.

The Daily Oregonian.

CITY.

[illegible]—ING OREGONIAN has a larger [illegible]CRIPTION LIST than any other [illegible]Daily published in this City.

THE DAILY OREGONIAN may be had at the Franklin [illegible] Store, and at Charles Barrett's, Front street.

[illegible]AR.—The prospect seems very favorable for the "equinoctial storm" to last until [illegible].

[illegible] IS THE TIME.—We think it would be a good idea for our Street Commissioner to [illegible] thorough examination of the streets and sidewalks, crossings, &c., and have them [re]paired before the rainy weather renders work impossible.

NEEDED.—Our city needs quite a [number of] sewers. We hope they will be [illegible].

RETURN.—Yesterday being the last day of the State Fair, most of our citizens who [were in] attendance will return to night.

[THE] COTTON TRADE THROUGH THE PORT [OF] MATAMORAS.—Washington, August 29, 1862.—[illegible] Blood, Consul to Monterey, [illegible] this city a few days since, [illegible] important news from the Rio [Grande] [illegible] having left Matamoras on the [illegible] Blood represents the Confederates [carryi]ng on a brisk cotton trade through Matamoras, they having obtained [illegible] pass 2,000 bales through that port [illegible]. This cotton is sent to Europe, [and] for powder, arms and munitions of [war] are introduced into rebeldom by [way of] Matamoras, without let or hindrance. [Confe]derates are also obtaining large [quantities] of sulphur and saltpetre from Mexico [by wa]y of Monterey. Blood attempted [to stop] this traffic, but unsuccessfully, as [they] have active and energetic agents at [illegible] who speak the Spanish language, [giving] them great advantages over our [own] agents abroad, who seem to be [illegible] reference to their ignorance of [the langua]ge of the country to which they [are accredit]ed. This trade through Mexico [could b]e stopped, but it can only be done [by holdi]ng Western Texas with National [troops. T]he Government should turn its attention to this important point at the earliest [moment. T]he Confederate authorities of Texas [have taken] the most decided measures against [Union] men in the western part of that [State; the]y are compelling all citizens suspected to [be loyal] to the Union to take an oath of [allegiance] to their bogus government. They [illegible] lately to arrest Gen. A. J. Hamilton [at his] house, near Austin, but he received [notice of] their intentions, and took French [leave,] accompanied by a band of devoted [friends, on] his way into Mexico. Blood [met] Hamilton at Matamoras, and states [that he] started to find Hamilton in this city, [but he] leave about the same time with [him.] Gen. Hamilton and his friends [illegible] of the rebel Gen. Sibley, who commanded the expedition to Santa Fe. Sibley [set out] last Fall, at the head [of] [illegible] and six pieces of artillery, and [was joined] by Col. J. R. Baylor (one of Buchanan's [illegible] Indian Agents,) at El [Paso with] 700 men, making the force over [illegible]. Sibley had been completely [used] up by Gen. Canby, and got back to San [Antonio] with only 900 men of his command—many of these paroled prisoners—having lost [two-thirds] of his men in killed, wounded [and ill] on the road home. Why cannot [our] other Generals give as good [an account] of themselves as Gen. Canby? [There] is no blockading vessel off the [mouth of the] Rio Grande, and represents in [a strong] light the necessity of having [one there] which would check to some extent the [illegible] of arms in that direction, or [compel] the rebels to the costly mode [of throu]gh Mexican Custom Houses, in[clud]ing at Brazos Santiago, on the [illegible] which can now be done with impunity. [A] blockade should be there if for no [other reas]on than to give protection to Union [men] from Texas, like Hamilton. Can [not Gideon] Welles spare one of his many [vessels for] that noble and humane purpose?—N. Y. Times.

[The at]tention of the community is re[quested] [illegible] to the New Goods arrived by the last [steamer] [illegible] full line of Ladies' Silk Mantillas, [illegible] Florals, new style Hats, Challis, Poplins, [illegible] [toge]ther with a full assortment of Gents New [illegible] suits, Fancy Socks, Broadway styles [illegible] and the very latest fashion of Parisian and New York Fancy Summer Panama Braid and Light [illegible] Hats. All the articles are now ready for sale. [illegible] at Backers' New Building on First street, [illegible] [illegible] Wharf.

The Markets.

Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather during the past week, business has been of a [illegible] character. Quite a number [of mer]chants from the mining districts are [now] here engaged in purchasing goods for [illegible]. There are but few changes to note in [illegible] market. Wheat, oats and hay have had an [up]ward tendency. Considerable activity has been going on in the money market. [illegible] shipment of gold in dust and [illegible] down by the steamer this evening [for San] Francisco. Many buyers of gold dust have been compelled to draw on houses in San Francisco for coin to meet the increased re[quirements for] the precious metal.

Cattle Dying in Spring.

PORTLAND Ogn Sept 3 1862

EDITOR OREGON FARMER —Many farmers in Oregon, during the last spring, lost many cattle which have died fat—having apparently wintered through in good health —and to some the cause of death was unknown or only conjectural As it may be of use to some readers of your paper, allow me to point out the cause, the disease, and the cure

The cattle, during winter, although fed upon good hay, will, when turned out, eat browse—and that frequently without having salt sufficient supplied to them—the browse being of a sticky, hard nature, absorbs more moisture from the stomachs of the cattle than usual summer or fall does, the stomachs being at the conclusion of winter in a state of inability to fully perform their natural functions, (which a good supply of salt would help,) the manifolds become hard, and the remains of food therein cakes and hardens, and causes costiveness, inflammation and death, but sometimes not so early as at others Hence the slow cases of disease are those which allow the cattle to eat and enjoy the young grass, which for a time slightly loosens their bowels But their continued eating of browse also does not diminish, but irritates, continues and completes the disease, and death ensues from costiveness, irritation and inflamation

The Symptoms—I have observed is a dull greyness of the eyeballs, languor, a desire to lay down Then weakness in the hind quarters, apparently in the small of the spine, causing them to fall or lay down ofttimes refusing to eat, and when raised up by artificial means, standing motionless, and, as some call it, on the lift

Now for the cure

Take 1 quart of sweet milk
1 pint of brain or wheat ...
1 pint of soft (home made) soap

Mix well, and give one fourth or one part, of the mixture as soon as the eyes begin to seem languid and the eyeballs grey, at night and another dose the next morning

If the animal shows a desire to eat and stand, use salt freely by giving it some to eat This is enough to cure a common case in the early stages Give, in obstinate cases the whole in four doses I am well informed by those who tried it last spring, that it will save most all cattle from dying after spring opens—or even whenever costiveness of the manifolds occurs It saved three head for me GEORGE M EVANS
